Elizabeth Locke's timeless designs reflect an ongoing fascination with the exquisite, the unusual and the forgotten. Always drawn to things rare and beautiful, Elizabeth travels the world in constant pursuit of the uncommon elements that make up her designs.

She finds them in attics, at auctions, at drizzly pre-dawn markets, in elegant shop windows, in dirt-floored workshops, in bazaars and souks.

Coins from ancient Greece and Rome or from forgotten empires

Richly colored Venetian glass intaglios made from 17th-century molds

Antique carnelian and sardonyx seals

Luminous South Sea pearls

Cabochon stones of vibrant hues

Minutely intricate 19th-century micromosaics from Italy

18th-century gambling counters carved in mother-of-pearl

All unconventional treasures that inspire and dictate the exuberant designs, each of which is inevitably unique.

The jewels are meticulously handmade by craftsmen using centuries-old techniques. Traveling to Bangkok several times a year, Elizabeth supervises the physical creation of her designs by Thai goldsmiths who deftly hammer the gold, a special 19-karat alloy chosen for its warmth of color, to an unusual burnished finish.

Elizabeth Locke jewelry has a weight and substance that no cast jewelry could ever have as well as intrinsic value and a sumptuousness that is immediately recognizable.
